Our Products

We supply bearings, mounting units, power transmission components, oil seals and industrial components to meet the needs of different sectors and applications.

Bearings and Bearing Housings

We offer a variety of bearings, mounting units and accessories for equipment, machinery, maintenance and replacement. We identify suitable products based on the specifications and application requirements supplied by the customer.

Power Transmission Components

We provide belts and related components for applications requiring power transfer between equipment parts. We handle supply requests according to required sizes and technical specifications.

Oil Seals

We provide oil seals for machinery and equipment to help limit fluid leaks and protect operating components. The appropriate product is determined by its dimensions, specifications and intended application.

Sourcing on Request

Beyond our main product lines, we accept requests for industrial products and components based on required specifications and quantities. Before quoting, we review feasibility, product source and expected delivery time.
